International Baccalaureate student, Amoon, came to Rossall from Beijing, China at 16, as a student in the School's International Study Centre to learn English and sit the IGCSE examinations.

Now in her last year of Sixth Form study, Amoon has opted for the International Baccalaureate as a pathway to university and beyond. She has plans to develop a career as an Actuary but prior to that would like to attend university in the UK, following in the footsteps of her brother and several other members of the family and therefore believes the IB to be the best way of gaining entry into the most prestigious universities.

Being able to keep in touch with friends and family in China, via the internet, whilst at School helped Amoon to settle in quickly, as did her house parents whom she says "treat the students like their own children". She returns to China in holiday periods but now feels the pull of school friends when she is away from Rossall.

"Before I came to the school I had never been to the UK, so didn't know what to expect but both the school and this region are great places and I have made so many friends here that I have never been homesick. The teachers have also been instrumental in helping me to adjust to life in a foreign country and the support they give the students is first class."

When not studying, Amoon is often to be found honing her skills on one of the school's squash courts or exercising in the swimming pool but admits to being equally at home on shopping trips with friends or on one of the many organised cultural visits, which form part of the school's weekend activity programmes.
