Fun, activities and friends are three things of importance to year 5 pupil, Harry. Football, Rugby and swimming are three more...as are painting in Art class, playing the xylophone in music room and taking English language lessons!

The nine-year-old junior day pupil's list of 'three's' could go on and on and illustrates that it's difficult to have just one favourite subject or activity to define how much he enjoys his time at Rossall.

Harry would love to one day be a professional footballer but doesn't like the thought of having press photographers chasing him like they do his favourite England players. The fact that Harry shows great ability in a number of sports and academic subjects indicates that he is likely to have many more options after school.

For the present, Harry is content to enjoy school. It is fun. He has lots of friends and, he does enjoy learning!

"We have good opportunities to learn here because there are only 15 of us in a class and so the teachers have more time for us, which makes everything more interesting."
