Boarding on a weekly basis gives 13-year-old Japanese pupil, Takihiro ample opportunity to enjoy his favourite start to the day...a British breakfast!

The Anchor House pupil has been at school for one and a half years, since his father came to work in the UK and in that short time he has mastered the English language, integrated fully into campus life and even developed his rugby skills to make an appearance in the U-14's team.

For Takihiro the School is a second home, where boarding enables him to combine study, membership of the school's CCF, his passion for football and the opportunity to spend time with the many friends he has gained since his arrival.

“In Japan I didn't really have the chance to mix with children of other nationalities but here I have friends from Britain, China, Spain, Korea and many other countries. We all get on so well because there's a great community spirit, which is one of my favourite aspects of school life...apart from breakfast in the Dining Hall!

My parents chose Rossall because of the standard of education and because it's a safe campus, however, for me it's much more than that and although I miss Japan I really enjoy my life here.”
